NEW JERSEY CAMPAIGN.

A MIGHTY INTERESTING STORY. Crafty Quay Has a Greedy Eye on the State and Will Run the Machine.

Trenton, N. J., special: Matthew Stan ley Quay and the national republican adstration are believed to be behind the ampaign that has just begun in this state. if Gen. Edward Burd Grubb has any chance of election to the governorship in November he bases it on the outside backing he expects to get. He certainly cannot expect to win by the aid of the Jersey republican organization. The latter establishment is in very bad shape and has been to face practical politics. They are also in had odor with the national organization. odor with the national organization. Quay smiles sarcastically when the politicians of his party in New Jersey are mentioned. He has no confidence in the management here. That is why he left New Jersey in the lurch last fall and declined to put a lot of money in the state at the last recovered, as he promised. clined to put a lot of money in the state at the last moment, as he promised.

It is an interesting story, that story of how the chairman of the national republican committee went back on his pledges to the Jersey leaders in the campaign that resulted in Harrison's election. It has never been published. One of the most prominent young republicans of the state, who has known Quay for a good many years and stands well with him, told the circumstances to your correspondent the other day.

"Quay promised us $50,000," he said, "if we would raise a similar amount. We got our share of the cash ready late in October. our share of the cash ready late in October. I was delegated to report our success to the national chairman. It afforded me pleasure to do so, because we were proud of our achievements, and because I had been to Quay for assistance in several of our congressional fights, and had invariably obtained what I wanted. I found him in the committee rooms on Fifth avenue. I told him we had fulfilled our part of the agreement and wanted him our part of the agreement and wanted him to come to time. He said he had $50,000 laid away for New Jersey. But he wasn't ready to hand it over just then. He told me to wait until the Fratsy before election me to wait until the Fridey before election and then he would talk more definitely. I didn't altogether like his manner, but I made as cheerful a report as possible. Meanwhile, we went on and spent our money. I must admit we put most of it in various legislative districts, with a view of capturing the legislature. I felt that this was rather poor policy. But the state committee said it was absolutely essential to get the legislature and that the national committee's money would suffice for the tive channels.

"The Friday before election I went over to see Matthew Stanley. He wasn't at headquarters. He had a headache and had gone to his room at the Everett house. I knew him well enough to go to his apartments. I found him asleep on the sofa. I waited until he awoke and then we went down to lunch. After lunch I told him I had come for the $50,000 for New Jersey. We needed it, and the result in our state would largely depend on its being circulated in proper directions. Quay looked at me quizzically for a moment, and then said:

"Well, I am not going to give it to you."

"To say I was astounded is putting it mildly. I was absolutely dumbfounded.

"In those quiet tones of his, which always mean business, he replied:
"There are two reasons why New Jersey is not going to have that money. In the first place the state cannot be carried for Harrison anyhow. It might have been a late as Oct. 8th and good returning unwould be improved, but they weren't. You fellows have been neglecting the presidency and putting all your energies into the legislative struggle. The democrats have kept their main eye on Cieveland. have kept their main eye on Cleveland. They have the inside track and will get the electoral votes of New Jersey. You fellows will not carry the state for Harrison, and I don't believe you will pull through in the legislative contest. If I hand over the cash the larger portion of it will go to elect assemblymen. I am here to go to elect assemblymen. I am here to elect a president and get a majority in congress. I am not here this year to elect legislatures, particularly in democratic states.

"That is my first reason. The second is the more important to me, if it isn't to you. Harrison must be elected. That $50,000 is going to elect him. I am keeping it in reserve. It will do the business and surprise the enemy. It won't be given out until Monday, and when it is given out it will go where every dollar will tell. If twill go where every dollar will tell. If you want a little balm for your troubled soul take my advice and bet on Harrison. Get odds if you can, but if not bet even, and remember that Jersey's missing money is going to earry us through.'
"I tried to find out where the money was to be put. He wouldn't give me a definite answer, but merely told me to keep my eye on election night upon the returns from King's county, New York. I bet $5 000, and kept my eye on King's county. I won my bet, and King's county carried New York through and elected Harrison. After the battle was over Quay told me that every cent of that money we were to have went into Brocklyn on Tuesday morning and did the husiness. He remarked very his power. Harrison is after a second term. The fever has caught him, as it catches all

Isle county, in which so many persons los went into Brocklyn on Tuesday morning and did the business. He remarked very placidly that if he had fulfilled his piedge to New Jersey Harrison would have been beaten and New Jersey wouldn't have come out any differently."

In the knowledge of the facts, it seems rather strange that Quay should be going to help the brethren nere this fall and that the administration also proposes to give the facts of the proposes to give the facts of the fact rather strange that Quay should be going to help the brethren nere this fall and that the administration also proposes to give Grubb a lift. But it is not strange when Grubb a lift. But it is not strange when you know all about it. Quay and the republican national committee desire to make a fine showing for the party in November. It usually happens that the party in power lapses the year after it gets into the white house. It meets with reverses in local elections. Quay wants to prevent any relayse. That is why he is working hard all over. He has a good grip in all the western states. He will strain every nerve to carry Virginia, despite Mahone's personal unpopularity.

And he is going to see what he can do with New Jersey. Leon Abbott will not have the walk over so universally predicted, he would have if he only had the republican state committee to tuesle with.

The Verdict Unanimous.

The Verdict Unanimous, publican state committee to tuesle with.
But he will have to fight the ablest politician in the country, backed by all the money possible, and by the influence of the national administration. Besides, the port the republican nominee for governor. It boods counts for anything at the polls, and trickery succeeds in current politics, as is pretty generally admitted, the republics.

HELENA MONT., Sept. 1, 1889.

Certain very recent rulings of the General Land office at Washington upon the requirements as to proof in Mineral Entries made by corporations or individuals, make it extremely probable that the majority of such entries, for which applications for patent are now pending. WILL BE SUSPENDED FOR SUPPLEMENAL EVIDENCE.

It is certainly a wise precaution to anticipate a probable hindrance to the issuance of a patent by a careful re-examination of the proofs furnished, in order that such evidence, if found wanting, may be at once supplied.

For such examination and the preparation of all papers needed in mineral claims my many years of recent service in the General Land Office give me special advantage.
